Antea Group reinforces international position with ICEACSA Grupo takeover

Heerenveen, Netherlands – November 27, 2017 - Antea Group is taking over Spanish engineering firm ICEACSA Grupo in a move that will see the company reinforce its international position. ICEACSA's main operations involve infrastructure, planning and mobility.

Ambition

This takeover constitutes the next step in Antea Group's international growth strategy. "The ICEACSA Grupo takeover is an excellent fit with our ambition of achieving international growth and reinforcing our position," explains CEO Rob van Dongen. "It creates additional opportunities for us, which will let us expand in southern Europe on the one hand, and give us increased access to the Spanish-speaking Latin American market on the other. The latter will help us expand throughout South America."

ICEACSA Grupo

A Spanish engineering firm founded in 1985, ICEACSA Grupo employs over eighty members of staff, half of whom work at the head office in A Coruña. The firm also has offices in Latin America, in Mexico, Panama and Colombia. Over half of its projects are run in Spanish-speaking Latin American countries.

About Antea Group

Antea Group's consultants and engineers have been working to improve Dutch living environments for many years now, in both urban and rural areas, covering a wide range of aspects from air to water. We design bridges and roadways, and create residential neighborhoods and water structures. But we are also involved in areas such as the environment, safety, asset management and energy. Under the name Oranjewoud, we expanded into an all-round, independent partner for companies and government bodies. As the Antea Group, we also apply this knowledge at a global level, combining valuable expertise with a pragmatic approach to make solutions attainable and workable. Our approach is goal-oriented, with due consideration for sustainability. We anticipate today's demands and tomorrow's solutions, just as we have been doing for over 65 years now.

We ask that you use the full name Antea Group in any publications about our company: the abbreviation "Antea" does not refer to our company. The name Oranjewoud is used exclusively for Oranjewoud N.V. This public limited liability company is the top holding company of Antea Group, among other companies.
